

Advice

Under Act No. 348/2005 Coll., on radio and television fees, as amended, the payer of the TV licence fee means an individual who is the owner or user of a TV receiver.

Each household that owns a TV receiver is obliged to pay the TV licence fee. A 'TV receiver' means any device technically capable of receiving a television signal, regardless of the method of reception (e.g. a television set, tablet, mobile phone or similar devices connected to the internet). The obligation applies even if you use the TV receiver only to watch commercial platforms such as YouTube, Netflix, Apple TV, Amazon Prime, HBO, etc.

You can pay the TV licence fee by setting up a standing order on your bank account, by payment card or related methods (Apple Pay and Google Pay), by express bank transfer or via the SIPO service offered by the Czech Post¹. This document is meant only for payers who need to register or who already pay the fee directly to Czech Television.

The monthly amount of the TV licence fee is CZK 150 and is payable by the 15th day of each calendar month or, in the case of direct payment to Czech Television, by the 15th day of the first month of the agreed payment period (month, quarter, half-year, year). The monthly amount of the TV licence fee increases by 6% as of 1 July of the calendar year following the year in which the cumulative inflation since the last increase exceeds 6%. The Ministry of Culture announces the updated monthly amount by notice in the Collection of Laws and International Treaties.

The first TV licence fee payment must be made by the 15th day of the calendar month following the month in which the individual/household became a payer to Czech Television account No. 8029-1800060583/0300. Payers must use the variable symbol assigned to them at registration.

Any changes related to the payer's registration or to the payment of the TV licence fee must be reported by the payer to Czech Television's TV Licence Fees Department within 15 days after they occurred.
